Majority of women say they buy imitation designer goods

Reuters

NEW YORK Even if they can't afford the real thing, many American women still strive for that designer look and have no problem buying knockoffs, or cheaper copies, according to a new survey released Tuesday.

Three-quarters of the women questioned in the poll admitted that they had knowingly purchased a counterfeit designer fashion item, and many said they had as many as five fake dresses, handbags, wallets, pieces of jewelry or pairs of shoes.

More than half bought knockoffs because they couldn't afford the designer label, while 37 percent wanted to impress their friends or family. But 9 percent simply couldn't tell the difference.

"As demand for designer fashion and accessories has increased, so has the demand for knockoff designer goods," said Mark Pearson, the chairman of couponcodes4u.com, which conducted the poll.

"While it may be satisfying for those consumers who can afford to purchase designer goods outright, many Americans are turning to knock off pieces to fit in, without the expensive price tag," he added in a statement.

Handbags and wallets were the most popular items, with about a third of the 2,105 women questioned in the poll saying they had purchased them.

Nearly a quarter had bought a fake designer dress, and roughly 20 percent purchased knockoff jewelry or shoes.

Despite their appeal, Pearson said the quality of the fake items may not be as good, and added that purchasing them also is illegal.

until I became a part of it.

When it comes to being social in Chicago, we have a well-established hipster scene, a punk scene, a hip-hop scene, etc. Now, I can tell you we can officially add one more to that list: the startup scene.

My best friend, Keisha, is a nerd. She's such a nerd, in fact, that she started an organization called Sugar Gamers that targets other female nerds. Our friendship is a democracy, so for every concert and out-of-town performance I drag her to, I have to attend just as many technology conventions and entrepreneurial seminars.

When Keisha started inviting me to parties for the startup community, I declined out of concern that I might go down in history as the first person to actually die of boredom. However, once I started attending the events I realized that Chicago's entrepreneurial smartypants folks know how to party.

I was won over when a hot guy whose company recently had received funding asked if I had a day job. I said, "I ain't never had a day job. I don't even own a resume." His response was, "Me neither! You're an entrepreneur, too!" Well played, hot guy. Well played.

These days, most startups are going to have a technology component. That means students and recent graduates are gonna be around for sure, as well as publicists, photographers, graphic designers and other young folks whose job it is to make companies look cool.

Of course, this scene isn't for everybody. (That's my polite way of saying if you're not brainy, you probably won't like it.) These start-up scenesters like to socialize and network at the same time.

If the same old party scene isn't fitting into your 2013 agenda, maybe it's time to shake things up. These folks organize meet-ups at the coolest locations in the city. They book some of the best DJs who actually play music from this decade, and their events always include freebies.

On New Year's Eve, I attended a party at Adler Planetarium called Entrepreneur's Eve, and it was surprisingly crunk.

One of the funniest moments occurred in the bathroom, when a girl asked my bestie and me if we had cocaine because she "really, really wanted some." Every woman in the bathroom immediately stopped and gave her the stank eye. I couldn't decide what was funnier—the fact that she asked the only two black girls around for coke or the fact that everyone in the bathroom looked at her like she was crazy for doing it.

We ended New Year's Eve dancing under the stars in Adler Planetarium, with everyone singing all the words to Trinidad James' song "All Gold Everything." Chicago's entrepreneurs work hard and play hard, too. So it made total sense that everybody hit the floor when the DJ spun Rick Ross's hit "Ima Boss."

Well played, DJ. Well played.

Remember when the craziest thing someone could do to your Facebook account was hack it and post embarrassing status updates about you?

Well, those days are over. Buzzfeed is reporting a new Facebook trend: People are having their friends' accounts put into a special memorial state by informing Facebook that the friend has died.

It's absurdly easy to do this. According to Buzzfeed, all you have to do is fill out a form that can be found in Facebook's help center. Provide the person's name, email and account name. OK, so Facebook also requires "proof" that the person is dead, but Buzzfeed reports that they'll settle for a link to an online obituary. If your friend shares a name with anyone who has ever had an obituary appear online, that's all you need—the facts don't even have to match up. So if your 25-year-old friend named, say, John Smith gets on your nerves, an obituary of a 77-year-old man named John Smith from an entirely different state may be all you need to exact a

How To Get Rid Of Knee Pain Once And For All... Without Drugs, Shots, or Surgery

Now, in Downtown Chicago, IL, one doctor is helping local residents with knee pain live more active, pain-free lives.

Living with knee pain can feel like a crippling experience.

Let's face it, your knees aren't as young as you used to be, and playing with the kids or grandkids isn't any easier either. Maybe your knee pain keeps you from walking short distances or playing golf like you used to.

Nothing's worse than feeling great mentally, but physically feeling held back from life because your knee hurts and the pain just won't go away!

My name is Dr. Paul Ruzila, owner of Chicago Chiropractic & Wellness. Since we opened eight years ago, we've seen hundreds of people with knee problems leave the office pain free.

Do You Have Any of the Following Conditions?

- Arthritis
- Knee pain
- Cartilage damage
- 'Bone-on-bone'
- Tendonitis
- Bursitis
- Crunching and popping sounds

Here's What Our Patients Say... "I was in denial about my knees as I winced on stairs, and put off going for a run. I didn't want to hear that I needed surgical intervention. I admit I was skeptical about how my knees could be improved with such non-invasive procedures. But I am happy to report that I was wrong. I went for my first run in about 18 months. NO PAIN! Thanks for relieving my knee pain!" - Jeff K.

If you're suffering from these conditions, a new breakthrough in medical technology may completely eliminate your pain and help restore normal function to your knees.

Finally, You Have An Option Other Than Drugs or Surgery

New research in a treatment called low level laser therapy, or cold laser, is having a profound effect on patients suffering with knee pain. Unlike the cutting type of laser seen in movies and used in medical procedures, the cold laser penetrates the surface of the skin with no heating effect or damage.

Cold laser therapy has been tested for 40 years, had over 2000 papers published on it, and been shown to aid in damaged tissue regeneration, decrease inflammation, relieve pain and boost the immune system. This means that there is a good chance cold laser therapy could be your knee pain solution, allowing you to live a more active lifestyle.

Professional athletes like Lance Armstrong and team members of the New England Patriots rely upon cold laser therapy to treat their sports-related injuries. These guys use the cold laser for one reason only...

It Promotes Rapid Healing Of The Injured Tissues.

Before the FDA would clear the cold laser for human use, they wanted to see proof that it worked. This led to two landmark studies.

The first study showed that patients who had cold laser therapy had 53% better improvement than those who had a placebo. The second study showed patients who used the laser therapy had less pain and more range of motion days after treatment. If the cold laser can help these patients, it can help you too.

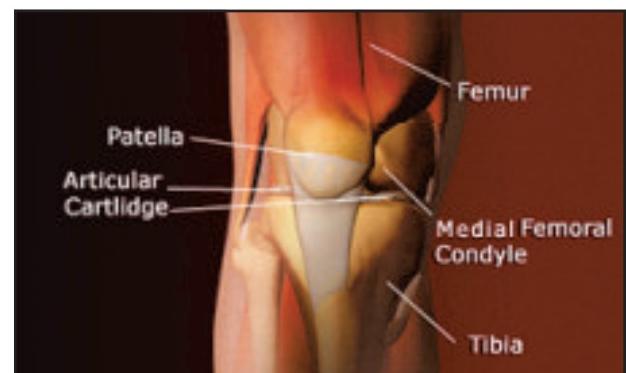

Could This Non-Invasive, Natural Treatment Be The Answer To Your Knee Pain?

For 10 days only, I'm running a very special offer where you can find out if you are a candidate for cold laser therapy.

What does this offer include? Everything I normally do in my "Knee Pain Evaluation." Just call before January 23rd, 2013 and here's what you'll get...

- An in-depth consultation about your problem where I will listen... really listen...to the details of your case.
- A complete neuromuscular examination.
- A full set of specialized x-rays to determine if arthritis is contributing to your pain.
- A thorough analysis of your exam and x-ray findings so we can start mapping out your plan to being pain free.
- You'll see everything first hand and find out if this amazing treatment will be your pain solution, like it has been for so many other patients.

Until January 23rd, 2013 you can get everything I've listed here for only $19. The normal price for this type of evaluation including x-rays is $250, so you're saving a considerable amount by taking me up on this offer.

A new treatment is helping patients with knee pain live a happier, more active lifestyle.

Remember what it was like before you had knee problems. When you were pain free and could enjoy everything life had to offer. It can be that way again. Don't neglect your problem any longer – don't wait until it's too late.

Here's what to do now:

Due to the expected demand for this special offer, I urge you to call our office at once. The phone number is 312-212-1150.

Call today and we can get started with your talk, exam and x-rays as soon as there's an opening in the schedule. Our office is called Chicago Chiropractic & Wellness and you can find us in downtown Chicago. Tell the receptionist you'd like to come in for the Knee Evaluation before January 23rd, 2013.

Sincerely,

Dr. Paul Ruzila, D.C.

P.S. Now you might be wondering...

"Is this safe? Are there any side effects or dangers to this?"

The FDA cleared the first cold laser in 2002. This was after their study found 76% improvement in patients with carpal tunnel syndrome. Their only warning – don't shine it in your eyes.

Of course at our office, the laser is never anywhere near your eyes and we'll give you a comfortable pair of goggles for safety.

Don't wait and let your knee problems get worse, disabling you for life. Take me up on my offer and call today 312-212-1150.

Gun violence on Chicago streets has become such a concern that Police Superintendent Garry McCarthy said Tuesday he's considering turning to celebrities such as Derrick Rose to try to convince residents to break the no-snitch code of silence that often impedes investigations into shootings in Chicago neighborhoods.

McCarthy said he has "spoken to a number of [celebrities] and they're all very interested" in becoming spokespeople for a campaign to convince Chicagoans to cooperate with police. He would not give specific names, but did say Rose, who grew up in crime-plagued Englewood before achieving NBA fame, is the type of star who might be able to get through to young Chicagoans.

Coming off a year in which Chicago saw homicides jump, McCarthy said he's trying to figure out how to get through to people.

"Who is it that these kids would listen to? It's not going to be Garry McCarthy. Maybe it will be Derrick Rose, I don't know," McCarthy said. "This is all under examination. It's something that we're looking to develop. It's not off the ground yet."

McCarthy acknowledged that part of residents' reluctance to cooperate with the police can be traced to mistrust stemming from incidents like the infamous cases of torture by former Commander Jon Burge. But

McCarthy said many of the high-profile police abuses cases for the department happened before he got here, and said he's working to improve accountability so people have greater trust in the police.

"We have gotten black eyes recently based on incidents that happened long before we got here," he said. "Early in the '90s, you name the scandal, they're all coming to fruition now."

The fact is, I can't fix that. I can't go back and change what happened with Jon Burge. But what I can do is focus on the behavior of our officers today."

Holy giant squid! Scientists catch creature on video

4 OGASAWARA, Japan For centuries the giant squid has been the stuff of legend, but now, for the first time ever, scientists have collected footage of a giant squid in its natural habitat, thousands of feet below the ocean's surface.

"All of us were so amazed at what it looked like," Edie Widder, a marine biologist who was part of the video-making mission, told the Los Angeles Times. "It looked carved out of metal. And it would change from being silver to gold. It was just breathtaking."

Scientists encountered the squid in the Pacific Ocean, near the Ogasawara archipelago of Japan. They first saw the squid at a depth of 2,066 feet and followed it down to a depth of 2,952 feet before it swam down into the inky abyss, Agence France-Presse reports.

"It was shining and so beautiful," Tsunemi Kubodera, a squid expert and researcher for Japan's National Science Museum, told AFP. "I was so thrilled when I saw it firsthand, but I was confident we would because we rigorously researched the areas we might find it, based on past data."

Kubodera, who has spent 10 years filming underwater in this part of the world, was one of the lucky scientists to be in the small submarine when the footage was collected in July 2012.

The squid caught on video is 9 feet long, but it is also missing its two longest tentacles. If those tentacles were still intact, the squid could have measured as much as 26 feet long, Kubodera told the AFP.

"This squid has an eye that is bigger than your head," said Widder, who developed the bioluminescent lure. "It is a visual predator. And that is what we were taking advantage of: They've been so elusive before because every time we've gone to explore they see us with our bright white lights and stay away."

FROM VIRTUAL TO REALITY?

The pressure's on: Simulated Blackhawks are West champs

By Ryan Smith

FOR REDEYE

Meet your 2013 Western Conference champion Chicago Blackhawks!

Well, virtually, that is. The real Hawks haven't laced up their skates in eight months, because of the NHL lockout. In the meantime, RedEye has employed EA's "NHL 13" to simulate the season. But since the 113-day labor mess ended Sunday and a shortened season begins soon, we thought we'd show you how the virtual Hawks fared—including their improbable run to the Stanley Cup Finals.

The Hawks had a blazing start, going undefeated in their first eight games and 12-4-1 after 17, but hit rough patches midway through. The Hawks finished 44-31-7, good for second place in the Central Division, and earned the No. 4 seed in the Western Conference playoffs.

Unsurprisingly, the first round against Detroit was a hard-fought battle. The Hawks managed to go up 3-2 in the series but dropped Game 6 in overtime. To the rescue in Game 7 was 21-year-old defenseman Nick Leddy, who notched two goals (his only tallies in the playoffs) in the deciding victory.

The second round didn't get any easier. Against Edmonton, the Hawks lost the first three games in the series. But they toughened up and won the next four, including a 4-2 victory at home in Game 7.

St. Louis provided a bit of relief during the Western finals. The Hawks beat the Blues four games to one behind Jonathan Toews, who racked up four goals and three assists in the

As for the actual NHL season ...

If everything goes smoothly in the voting processes for a new collective bargaining agreement, a 48-game NHL regular season will begin Jan. 19, a top league official told the Tribune. Depending on travel, teams could have a five- or six-day training camp to prepare for a season that will include only conference opponents.

series.

The Hawks had no miracles left in the Stanley Cup Finals against Toronto. The Blackhawks took Game 2 at Toronto but lost the rest, largely because of the red-hot play of Maple Leafs star Phil Kessel, who had two game-winning goals in the series.

1 Console Notre Dame after its loss in the BCS National Championship game.

Well, it wasn't a happy ending. Just an NDing.

Well, I donated $10 by texting "Irish" to 90999 to aid in that disaster. That help?

No. And you can't make me.

"I bet you more people will remember Katherine Webb than the final score. Chin up!"

They were on the winning team in 1865, which was way more important than some football game.

2 If Jon Bon Jovi is a Notre Dame fan ...

... he'll have to "Keep the Faith."

... then the best possible joke has already been made.

... my 13-year-old self weeps.

... then their loss must've been bad medicine for him, a real shot to the heart.

... it all makes perfect sense.

3 What do the Bulls mean when they say D-Rose is "right on schedule"?

He's ready to come back from break.

They're squeezing the small coal of hope Bulls fans have until it's a diamond of anxiety.

He's right on schedule to break our hearts by returning after it's too late to save the season.

His availability down the stretch is all a matter of "Kneed."

They planned for his knee injury all along so he could be the part of the biggest comeback story of all time?

4 Why is Jerry Reinsdorf on the Basketball Hall of Fame ballot?

He owns the court.

Because of SIX RINGS IN EIGHT YEARS, THAT'S WHY. Sorry, I've been stressed recently.

Jerry plays a mean game of H.O.R.S.E.

Six NBA championships aside, even the basketball gods are White Sox fans.

It's not as a candidate. It's as "Jerry Reinsdorf, Inc." because his multinational corporation of evil prints ballots.

5 Why are the Bears interviewing so many offensive coordinators?

They could use a long line.

It's like when your roommate keeps stealing your food; you need to address the problem at hand.

Hopefully, because they'll be replacing Lovie AND his latest meathead OC. Looking at you, Tice.

They're using all the intel gathered to develop a super playbook for Mike Singletary.

They want Mike Tice to feel really special when they decide to give him a lifetime contract extension.

A tangled Webb

The BCS National Championship game was a 42-14 snoozer, so naturally the buzz has surrounded Alabama quarterback A.J. McCarron's girlfriend. That would be Katherine Webb, 2012's Miss Alabama. The bullet points are these:

The good ...

After reportedly having 2,000 Twitter followers going into Monday's game, Webb's following exploded to more than 191,000 and counting as of Tuesday evening. We're going to give her the benefit of the doubt and say she can use her newfound platform for philanthropic purposes.

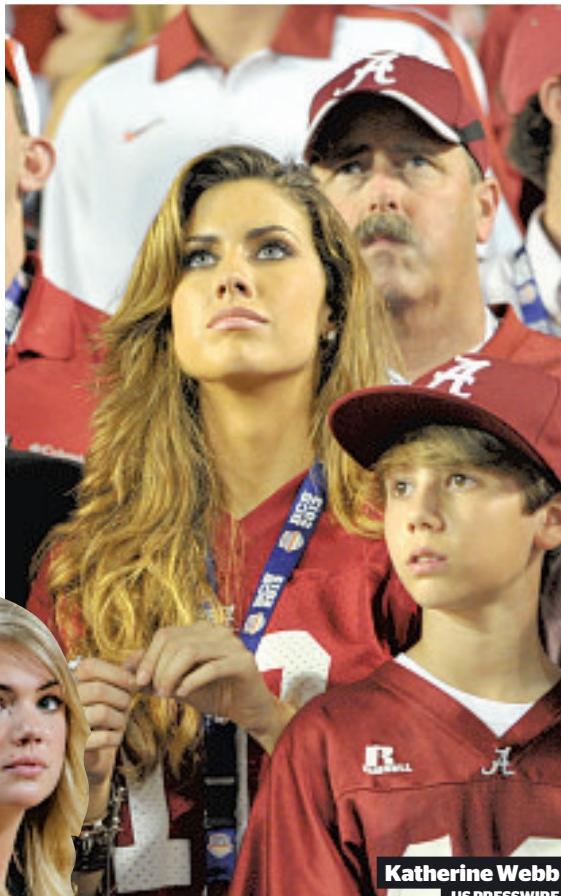

The bad ...

ESPN issued an apology Tuesday for remarks made by broadcaster Brent Musburger regarding Webb. Musburger had this to say early in the game to color commentator Kirk Herbstreit when the TV cameras showed Webb in the stands:

"You quarterbacks, you get all the good-looking women," Musburger said to Herbstreit, a former Ohio State quarterback. "What a beautiful woman."

Yeah, that's a bit creepy, Brent.

US PRESSWIRE

The ugly ...

Although it's not directly related, Sports Illustrated swimsuit model Kate Upton seemed to take a shot at Notre Dame AND alleged ex-boyfriend Mark Sanchez, the N.Y. Jets quarterback. She tweeted the following to her 660,000 Twitter followers after the Fighting Irish's embarrassing loss:

"It's okay Notre Dame this happened to the Jets every week."
That's just mean. Clever, but mean.

Weight Loss Research Study For People with Type 2 Diabetes

Physicians at Northwestern University are conducting a 52 week research study to evaluate the effectiveness of a weight loss program modified for people with Type 2 diabetes.

No medication is given to participants in this study.

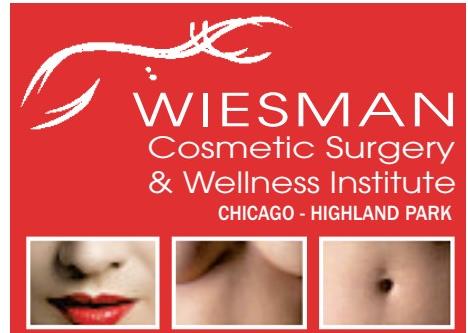

To qualify, you must have Type 2 diabetes, be between the ages of 18 and 70 years, overweight, not have significant illness or disease (such as heart disease), not be taking any medications for weight loss, and meet other criteria.

Qualified participants will be asked to attend 6 study visits, and will receive different types of weight management counseling, as well as medical exams, lab work, and weight monitoring.

There is no charge for participation. This study requires a commitment of a little more than 52 weeks.

To learn more about this study please call:

movies

1 FRIDAY Gangster Squad

L.A. cops try to take down gangster Mickey Cohen (Sean Penn), assuming Jerry (Ryan Gosling) doesn't get himself killed thanks to his relationship with Mickey's gal, Grace (Gosling's "Crazy Stupid Love" co-star Emma Stone).

What's new: Director Ruben Fleischer ("Zombieland," "30 Minutes or Less") takes on material that's not a joke. At least, it's not supposed to look like a joke.

What's not: Have you seen "L.A. Confidential"?

JAN. 18 Broken City

Ex-cop Billy Taggart (Mark Wahlberg) gets in over his head when the mayor of New York (Russell Crowe) asks Billy to find out who's sleeping with the mayor's wife (Catherine Zeta-Jones).

What's new: Um ...

What's not: The trailer suggests corruption, secrets and a twist that may not be that surprising. That said, with the clips set to Kanye's "Power," "Broken City" looks enjoyable anyway.

2 Luv

An ex-con (Chicago native Common) runs errands in Baltimore while teaching his 11-year-old nephew (Michael Rainey Jr.) big life lessons.

What's new: When taking on characters with dangerous pasts (or presents), Common rarely has more than just the bad behavior to work with.

What's not: He's still played criminals in the majority of his acting roles. Better to branch out than return to the well.

JAN. 25

Movie 43

A lot of huge stars (Halle Berry, Emma Stone, Hugh Jackman, Naomi Watts, Anna Faris, Seann William Scott, the list goes on) participate in a lot of crude behavior. Check the sort-of-funny red-band trailer for proof.

What's new: The large roster of directors (including Peter Farrelly, Brett Ratner and Bob Odenkirk) includes Elizabeth Banks (who co-stars), making this her first directorial contribution to a feature film.

What's not: Bad taste on purpose is not a new concept, no matter how star-studded the cast. Also familiar: the pairings of off-screen spouses Faris/Chris Pratt and Naomi Watts/Liev Schreiber—among other onscreen duos found in "Movie 43" we've seen before.

3 FEB. 1 Warm Bodies

A zombie (Nicholas Hoult) falls for a human (Teresa Palmer) and starts rediscovering his own humanity, while also defending both of them against deadly beasts.

What's new: The first big starring vehicle for Hoult tests the waters before "Jack the Giant Slayer" arrives in March.

What's not: "Zombieland" recently had fun with zombie movies and found something fresh in an ordinary place. Hoping "Warm Bodies" is as good as it looks.

Fresh & Screen

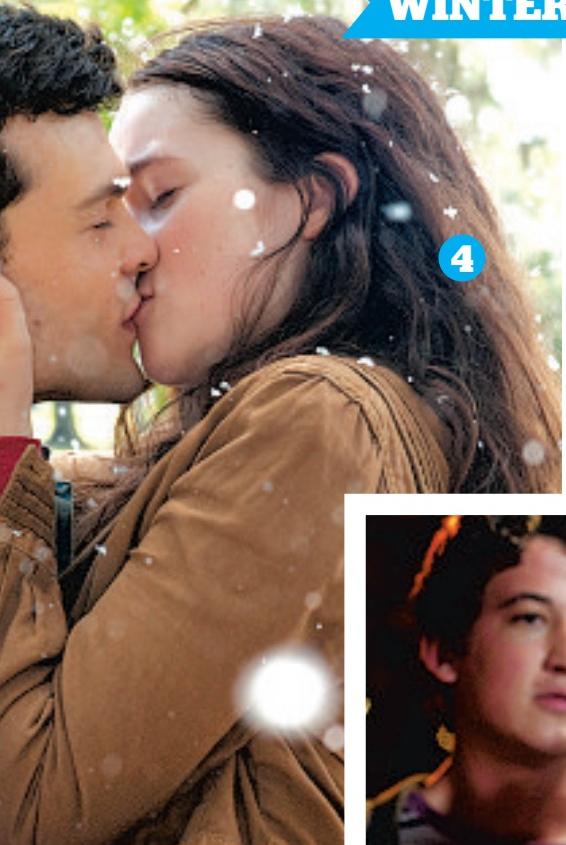

Will the first part of 2013 give us anything unique at the movies? We look at 15 new films

By Matt Pais | REDEYE

As a new year of movies kicks off, it's nice to feel like we're not just seeing another round of the same old things. In other words: Does 2013 have anything fresh to offer, or will these movies be a lot like those movies? Let's find out by looking at 15 upcoming films. MPAIS@TRIBUNE.COM | @MATTPAIS

WINTER/SPRING MOVIE PREVIEW

FEB. 8

Identity Thief

Sandy (Jason Bateman) turns his normal life upside-down to track down the woman (Melissa McCarthy) who stole his identity.

What's new: It was only a matter of time until McCarthy's breakout role in "Bridesmaids" led to a leading role, and here it is. (She also stars with Sandra Bullock in "The Heat," opening in April.)

What's not: McCarthy as a loose cannon and Bateman as an uptight guy driven to extremes screams, "Been there, done that."

Side Effects

A prescription has mysterious—dangerous?—results for a woman (Rooney Mara) preparing for the end of her husband's prison term. Jude Law, Catherine Zeta-Jones and Channing Tatum co-star.

What's new: Though "Side Effects" still looks creepy, it counts as Mara's first big starring role that's not totally at the far end of the intensity spectrum.

What's not: Director Steven Soderbergh ("Sex, Lies and Videotape," "The Girlfriend Experience") knows body heat, and writer Scott Z. Burns ("Contagion") knows health scares.

4 FEB. 13

Beautiful Creatures

Could Lena (Alice Englert) be drawn to the dark side? Can Ethan (Alden Ehrenreich) help keep her safe?

What's new: Englert and Ehrenreich aren't exactly household names. Perhaps they will be soon.

What's not: Adapting the popular series by Kami Garcia and Margaret Stohl, writer-director Richard LaGravenese is no stranger to unusual love stories—and needs to handle this one better than the awful "P.S. I Love You."

5 FEB. 14

A Good Day to Die Hard

Basically: "John McClane (Bruce Willis) Goes to Moscow."

What's new: Director John Moore ("Max Payne") and writer Skip Woods ("X-Men Origins: Wolverine") have never worked on a "Die Hard" movie. Based on their credits, they might not be the most welcome additions.

What's not: Reminder: This is the series' fifth movie. 2007's "Live Free or Die Hard" was terrible. We may not need to do this all over again.

6 MARCH 1

21 and Over

Two friends (Miles Teller, Skylar Astin) help their friend Jeff (Justin Chon) celebrate his 21st birthday in raucous style, even though Jeff has to get up early for something that will actually matter in the long run.

What's new: Writers Scott Lucas and Jon Moore ("The Hangover," "The Change-Up") direct their own script for the first time.

What's not: The movie pretty much has "The Hangover" meets 'Project X' meets a million other one-wild-night movies" written all over it.

7 MARCH 8

Oz the Great and Powerful

In a fantasy world of witches and munchkins, a magician

(James Franco) may be just what's needed to get the kingdom in order. Michelle Williams, Mila Kunis and Rachel Weisz co-star.

What's new: "The Wizard of Oz" did not contain a flying monkey voiced by Zach Braff.

What's not: The fun-looking "Oz" finds Franco re-teaming with both his "Date Night" costar Kunis and "Spider-Man" director Sam Raimi, who only gets cool points from one of his three Spidey flicks.

MARCH 15

The Incredible Burt Wonderstone

A magician (Steve Carell) tries to save his career and take down the new, hot magician on the scene (Jim Carrey).

What's new: Uh, Carell with long, blond hair?

What's not: This comedy from the writers of "Horrible Bosses" looks like it's telling jokes that "Arrested Development" told first, and almost certainly better.

Find dozens more upcoming movies at redeyechicago.com/movies.

8 MARCH 22

On the Road

Love, travel, drugs and jazz intersect in this drama about young people (Sam Riley, Kristen Stewart, Garrett Hedlund) trying to soak up as much culture, inspiration and pleasure as possible.

What's new: Some thought Jack Kerouac's seminal novel was unfilmable. Apparently not.

What's not: Much has been made of Stewart's very non-Bella turn (yes, including some brief nudity) in "On the Road," but it's worth noting that onscreen she's long been better than a badly written character like Bella. Please see "Adventureland" and "The Runaways."

MARCH 29

G.I. Joe: Retaliation

Soldiers fight enemies from within and without and a lot of stuff blows up.

What's new: The Rock, Bruce Willis and Adrianne Palicki join Channing Tatum for this follow-up to 2009's somewhat fun, overlong "Rise of Cobra."

What's not: Willis just doesn't change the way he talks. Ever.

APRIL 26
Pain and Gain
Bodybuilders (Mark Wahlberg, Dwayne Johnson, Anthony Mackie) rough up a rich guy (Tony Shalhoub), pay the price.
What's new: Michael Bay directing a movie that's not "Transformers"? Been awhile.
What's not: The Rock cast because he's the size of a boulder.

PREDICTIONS: OSCAR NOMINATIONS 2013

By Matt Pais | REDEYE

Before Thursday's big Oscar nominations announcement, allow me to make some predictions for three major categories. Find more predictions at redeyechicago.com.

BEST PICTURE

"Argo"
"Beasts of the Southern Wild"
"Django Unchained"
"Les Misérables"
"Life of Pi"
"Lincoln"
"The Master"
"Silver Linings Playbook"
"Skyfall"
"Zero Dark Thirty"

» I'm thinking/hoping "The Master" has enough people who love it to rack up the necessary votes—kind of like "Extremely Loud and Incredibly Close" did last year, even though that movie's horrible. If not, I think "Amour" is more likely than "Moonrise Kingdom," unfortunately.

BEST ACTOR

Bradley Cooper,
"Silver Linings Playbook"
Daniel Day-Lewis,
"Lincoln"
John Hawkes,
"The Sessions"
Joaquin Phoenix,
"The Master"
Denzel Washington,
"Flight"

» There could be enough "Les Miserables" backlash to keep Hugh Jackman out. I say that puts Cooper in. Fingers crossed for Phoenix, who indeed may be edged out by Jean Valjean.

BEST ACTRESS

Jessica Chastain,
"Zero Dark Thirty"
Jennifer Lawrence,
"Silver Linings Playbook"
Marion Cotillard,
"Rust and Bone"
Emmanuelle Riva, "Amour"
Naomi Watts,
"The Impossible"

» The Oscars are often stupid/frustrating. I fear they will overlook Quvenzhane Wallis' incredible performance in "Beasts of the Southern Wild." This way, if I'm wrong, I'll be thrilled. If anyone else gets in, it's Helen Mirren for "Hitchcock," not Rachel Weisz for "The Deep Blue Sea."

IN WITH THE NEW

5 world premiere plays hitting Chicago stages

By Julia Borcherts

FOR REDEYE

It's a brand-new year, which means it's time for some brand-new shows. Need a little drama in your life—or perhaps a some comedy or variety or horror or explorations of current events? Check out these five world premiere plays opening this winter in Chicago.

Perfume, Whiskey and Sickness of the Soul: Improvisation in the Style of Tennessee Williams

"A Sweet Bar Named Desire" or "Brat on a Hot Tin Roof," anyone? The Chemically Imbalanced Comedy cast takes a single audience suggestion to create and perform a one-act play drenched in Southern decadence, thwarted dreams and inappropriate sexual tension in this new show, which changes every week.

Go: 8 p.m. Jan. 19 through Feb. 9 at Chemically Imbalanced Theater, 1422 W. Irving Park Road

Tickets: $10. 773-865-7731; clcomedy.com

Ten

The Gift Theatre Company co-founders William Nedved and Michael Patrick Thornton go back to their roots—their first production together was a 10-minute play festival in 1997 at the University of Iowa—with a lineup of 10 world premiere 10-minute comedies and dramas by Pulitzer Prize finalist Will Eno ("Thorn Pain [based on nothing]"), Philip Edward Dawkins ("Failure: A Love Story"), Steppenwolf literary manager Aaron Carter, Marco Ramirez ("Six Stories Tall"), Laura Marks ("Bethany"), Noah Haldle ("Mr.

Marmalade") and others.

Go: 7:30 p.m. Thursday through Jan. 20 at The Gift Theatre, 4802 N. Milwaukee Ave. Tickets: Free. RSVP at 773-283-7071; thegifttheatre.org

Columbinus

American Theater Company artistic director PJ Paparelli co-wrote this drama about the Columbine shootings based on interviews with victims' families and other Littleton, Colo., residents, which premiered in its original form in 2005. He since has revised it after many involved agreed to speak up with new information as their legal issues were settled and healing processes progressed. Paparelli was putting the finishing touches on the new version when the Newtown, Conn., tragedy occurred. "While the nation mourns, a passionate dialogue has begun about the larger issues of gun control, mental health treatment and, ultimately, the unanswerable question of 'Why?'" he said. "Our interviewees in Colorado and our artistic team hope that 'Columbinus' will be a forum for Chicagoans to further that dialogue."

Go: 8 p.m. Feb. 1 through March 10 at American Theater Company, 1909 W. Byron St.

Tickets: $33-$50. 773-409-4125; atcweb.org

Crime Scene: A Chicago Anthology
AMIA SODZIAK PHOTOS

Crime Scene: A Chicago Anthology

Collaboraction artistic director Anthony Moseley's newly devised piece explores three acts of violence in Chicago during the new millennium—a mistaken identity killing, a beating that left its victim in a coma and an assault on two women in Wicker Park—through the crimes themselves and nonfiction source material including news reports and online comments. The goal? To raise questions about the connections between segregation, poverty, media coverage, pop culture and public apathy.

Go: 8 p.m. Feb. 14 through March 10 at Collaboraction, 1579 N. Milwaukee Ave., third floor

Tickets: $25; $15 for students and educators. 312-226-9633; collaboraction.org

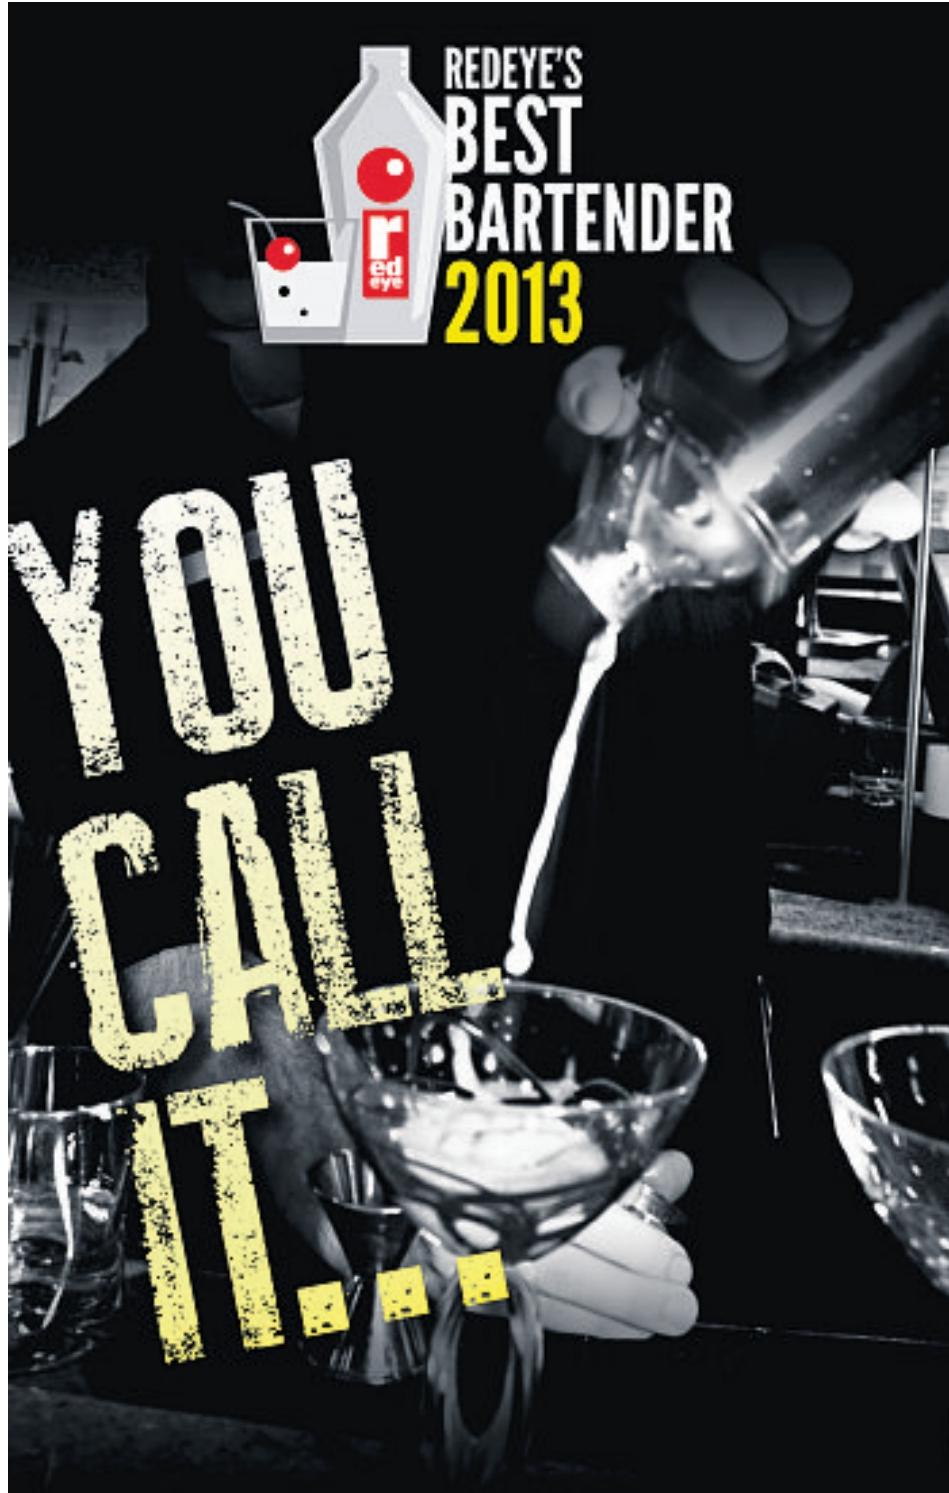

Lights Out, Everybody—a Tribute in Horror to Arch Oboler

For some thrills and chills with a throw-back twist, head to artistic director Jeremy Merkseoglu's brand-new adaptation of a trio of vintage horror tales from Chicagoan Arch Oboler's 1930s-40s radio program, "Lights Out," which included such guest stars such as Boris Karloff and began with a male voice intoning the words, "Lights out, everybody." The stories follow a Chicago serial killer, a young girl's misadventures on a class trip to Paris and a disturbed new bride who is pitted against her evil mother-in-law.

Go: 8 p.m. Jan. 17 through Feb. 10 at Dream Theatre, 556 W. 18th St.

Tickets: $17-$20. 773-552-8616; dreamtheatrec company.com

Poutine at Little Market Brasserie

Ride the gravy train

It's official: Chicago is in love with poutine

By Kate Bernot and Lisa Arnett | REDEYE

Poutine may be a Canadian invention, but Chicago certainly has embraced the gravy-and-cheese-topped French fry dish. So much so, in fact, that the city is welcoming its first Poutine Fest in February.

Put on by three Chicago poutine enthusiasts, the Feb. 24 festival will bring together chefs from all types of restaurants—from gastropubs such as The Gage to fine-dining spots such as El Ideas—for an indulgent, gravy-soaked throwdown.

"Having so many restaurants involved allows them to put their own spin on it," said one of the organizers, Melissa Karlin, adding that she doesn't expect every chef to stick to the gravy-and-cheese formula.

She and fest co-founders Rebecca Skoch and Molly O'Sullivan have recruited nearly a dozen restaurants for the competition, which will take place at Haymarket Pub & Brewery in the West Loop. Attendees will choose a crowd favorite and a panel of judges will also select a winner.

Tickets, which will include beers and poutine samples, will go on sale soon, and those who sign up for the festival's email list will get first priority.

If the thought of eating multiple plates of fries topped with meat and cheese sounds daunting, the organizers have some tips.

Gravy fries

"Eat salad the day before," advised Karlin. "But portion sizes will be manageable. We're not trying to give anyone cardiac arrest."

Of course, this isn't Chicago's first ride on the gravy train. In 2009, we started seeing the dish pop up on a number of bar menus, from Small Bar in Wicker Park and The Rocking Horse in Logan Square. Restaurants such as Bite Cafe, Old Oak Tap and Bangers & Lace added eggs on top and turned it into a brunch dish.

More recently, we've seen a second wave of poutine popularity hit the city. Alpana Singh's new River North wine bar, The Boarding House, serves a lobster version, while Uptown chicken restaurant The Pecking Order added a smoked gouda-topped version during brunch. Streeterville cafe Local Root opened last fall with an entire section of its menu dedicated to poutine, including a salty-sweet version with bacon and caramel. When Gold Coast restaurant Little Market Brasserie opens later this month, it will serve short rib-cognac poutine.

Perhaps the most dedicated is Badhappy Poutine Shop, which opened last spring and touts poutine as its main focus.

New Year's resolutions be damned, it looks like the poutine party is here to stay.

THREE TO PLAY

BY RYAN SMITH | FOR REDEYE

!!! Writer Rumble iOS

Disregarding the old cliché that only sticks and stones can break bones, words are weapons in "Writer Rumble"—a game that combines the word-finding puzzle solving of "Boggle" with "Mortal Kombat"-style arena fighting. You select one of several legendary authors—Jane Austen, Homer, Edgar Allan Poe, H.P. Lovecraft, Agatha Christie, and the Brothers Grimm (What, no Ernest Hemingway?!)—and conquer your human- or A.I.-controlled opponent by creating as many words as you can from a series of jumbled letters. The downside is the lack of asynchronous gameplay like that of "Words With Friends"—meaning you have to rely on live, real-time combat. The upside is that seeing the prim-and-proper Jane Austen throw word punches at a toga-wearing Homer rarely gets old.

ESPN Sports Connection Wii U

!!! If Ubisoft really wanted to make a true ESPN game, they should have put players in the role of a Woody

Paige-like talking head—yelling at other players about sports-related hot topics like Tim Tebow's talent level or which hottie Alex Rodriguez is dating. That probably would have been preferable to "ESPN Sports Connection," a collection of six sporting events like baseball, soccer and kart racing. It's supposed to be simplified for a "Wii Sports"-like experience, but instead, these games have been saddled with bizarre design choices. In football, you have to contort your arm nearly behind your head with a motion controller and flick your wrist to pass. The second player, meanwhile, draws lines with a stylus on the touchpad to defend. You're better off watching another episode of "SportsCenter" and pretending to play along with your TV remote.

!!! Punch Quest iOS

Since the runaway success of "Temple Run," endless running games have been popping up everywhere on mobile gaming devices, but "Punch Quest" just might be the best of the bunch. The core principle of the genre remains intact—you must guide your hero through a series of obstacles and see how far you can go—but instead of simply avoiding enemies, you have the option to punch right through them. Then there's the game's over-the-top goofy aesthetic, which suggests an '80s Nintendo game on shrooms. Get tips from a talking garden gnome! Buy a wizard hat! Ride a dinosaur that shoots lasers from its eyes! "Punch Quest" is frantic, fun and best of all—it's free!

whoville KANYE 'N' KIM'S LOVE SHACK

GUEST HOUSE
No, mother, you are not allowed to stay in the main home

GONDOLA RIVER
How the hell else are you supposed to get around a property this size? HELO, it's an ITALIAN villa.

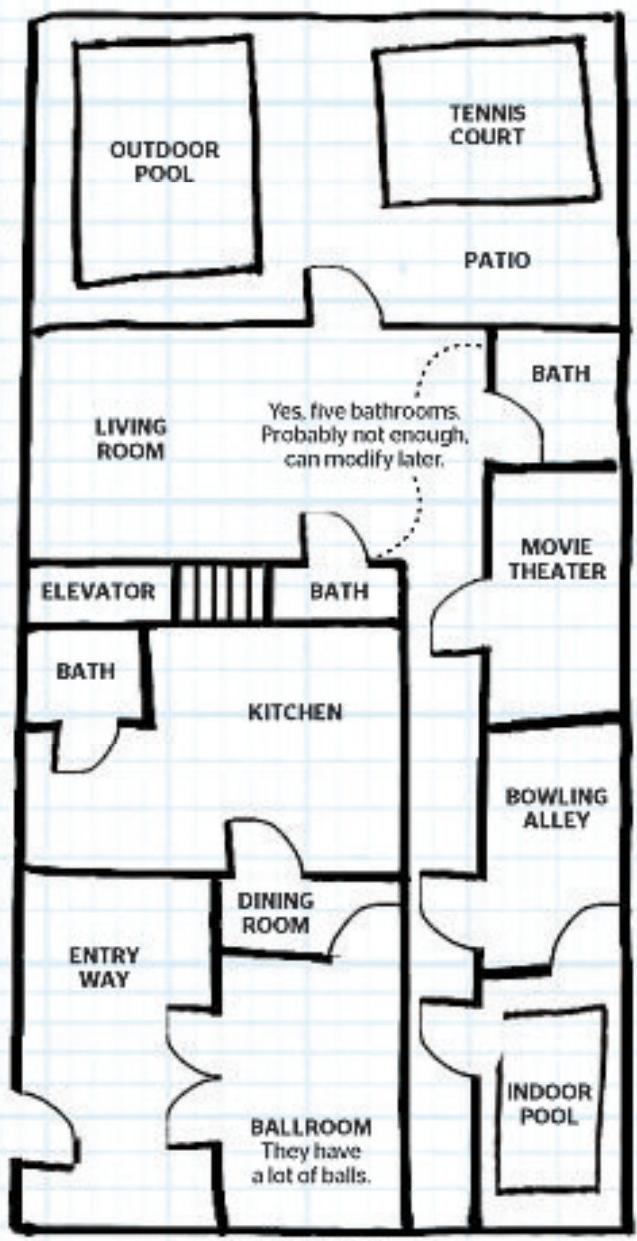

And by 'shack,' we clearly mean the opposite

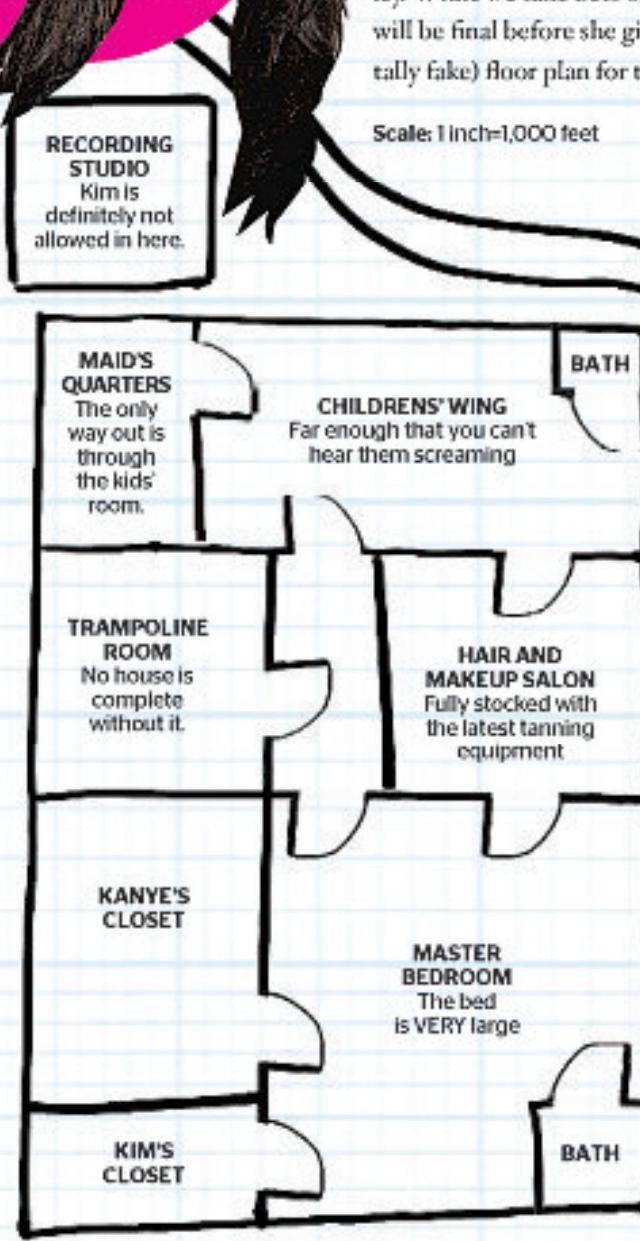

By Dana Moran | REDEYE

With a baby on the way, Kim Kardashian and Kanye West are wasting no time in getting their love nest set up. The duo purchased an $11 million mansion in Bel Air a few weeks ago, thr.com confirms. But the 10,000-square-foot monstrosity isn't up to snuff just yet—they're in the process of renovating it into a 14,000-square-foot Italian-style villa with delightful amenities like a gym, movie theater, hair salon and bowling alley. While we take bets on whether Kim's divorce from Kris Humphries will be final before she gives birth, we took some time to plot out a (totally fake) floor plan for the future palace. Yes, five bathrooms. Probably not enough, can modify later.

MALL
Because Rodeo Drive is so faaaaaaar.

FLAMINGO POND
They're pink!

It's something Kanye is thinking about getting into.

That's when Seth Rogen will make a guest appearance on "The Mindy Project," vulture.com reports. He'll play Sam, with whom Mindy shared her first kiss as a kid.

GO AWAY!

The Kardashian family loves the spotlight, but Americans seem to be tired of it shining on them. In an online survey by Harris Interactive on behalf of Zebra Pen Corp., 70 percent of respondents said the Kardashians were the celebs they'd most like to see "written off" in 2013. Here are the Top 5.
